The EYLF is built around the notion of communities of learners. Belonging, Being and Becoming all play a significant role for the early childhood professional: knowledge, practice and leadership. What would this look like in an early childhood setting? How do we create spaces for inspiring teachers and leaders? What does it look like to be exceptional? Do you lead from the front or from behind? What role do we take in knowledge, practice and leadership in our service, community, with colleagues and in the early childhood field itself. What does it take to lead and team? What is the role of leadership?

Considerable work is being done in the broad teaching profession to identify qualities of teachers and leaders who exemplify highly accomplished teaching and leadership practice. This workshop explores the role of the leader, what it can look like in an early childhood setting, and how it can be nurtured and supported. It will inspire more questions than give clear-cut answers.

Learning outcomes include:

- Understanding of what the key understandings of highly accomplished teachers and leaders.
- Qualities that build community connectedness
- How the Early Years Learning Framework supports communities of learners.

with NEVILLE DWYER

Neville is the director of the Dorothy Waide Centre for Early Learning/Griffith Child Care Centre Inc. A community based early childhood service based in Griffith NSW.
