

NURTURING PARTNERSHIPS

With FAMILIES

Are you working towards building a strong and genuine learning community?

Together we shall explore the benefits of working alongside families to create inclusive and positive learning environments for young children. Techniques for communicating and interacting will be shared and built upon in this interactive workshop.

Outcomes include:

- Explore the benefits of valuing the families contribution in early childhood education
- Share techniques for communicating and interacting with families
- Consider how the environment can welcome families and build upon children's experiences at home
- Consider shared decision making across learning communities

WITH SUE INGLIS

Sue Inglis has 23 years experience as an early childhood educator, spending many years teaching in remote country areas. She particularly enjoys creating opportunities with other educators to discuss and reflect on how we can build our capacity around what is valuable for young children, especially in the areas of curriculum, behaviour, relationship building and early literacy. Sue has been involved in the creation of Daisy digital portfolio software. She holds a Master of Education in early childhood and is the co-director of Growing Early Childhood. Sue has recently conducted research around the sustainability of professional development opportunities for the childcare field and has a real interest in assisting centres to build positive change.
